

Lack of News From Ladysmith Increases Public Anxiety.

General White's Official Desputch the Latest Word From Natal-The Inference That That Town is Surrounded by the Boers - Reported Brenkdown of the Cable Fails to Satisfy Students of the Situation-The Aukuned Position of the British Troops-The Naval Forces From Duchan and Cape Town-The Male Stampede and the Native Drivers.

LONDON, Nov. 1 .- General White's despatch of Torontay evening is the latest news, official or otherwise, recarding the situation in Natal. The silence imposes a painful strain on public auxlery, for those who profess confidence in the exactualing of lower, two frigue division at the flower, two frigues division at the flower. words of General Watte's despatch are unable to blind themselves to the fact that he is in a terribly ankward position, it is announced that the reseating of press messages is due to the breakdown of one of the cables, and to the fact that the resugining means of communication is taken wate enquiry from friends of the troops. Many fear, however, that it is more likely due to the enemy having got to the south of Ladysmith and severed communication. The newspapers express relief over General White's information that the lost column did not yield until it was practically de-

In view of the fact that the earliest reenforcements are yet a week distant from Durban, the public derive some comfort from the belief that the warships have sent several denohments inland besides the contingent at Ladyamith. There is no official news of the landing of bluejackets and marines, but it is stated that a strong naval force holds the bridge neroes the Tagela Biver at Celeuro, another occuples an important position south of the Orange River, while it is declared substanthat detachments of sailors are at the chief centres of Dutch disaffection.

The Government does not allow any definite statement regarding the naval strength in South African waters, but it is believed that there are eight vesse's of various classes at Cape Town and in that neighborhood, and six at Durbin.

There is a complete absence of news respecting Kimberley and Maleking.

The "Times" finds it difficult to believe In the story of the mule stampede. It deglares that trained buttery mules were never known to stampeds. They have togestedly made sight marches to India without mishap. It assumes that Colonel to may affected Carleton's mules were under native care, It recalls the recently reported mutiny of native muleform and suggests that the The French Press on the British Dis-Boers or their sympathings is mored with the drivers, and that the rolling of the bowlders was the signal for them to desert, It suggests alternatively that the natives became panic stricken and bolted with the

TRANSPORT REPORTED SUNK.

A Rumor That the Nublu Was Lost In a Storm.

LONDON, Nov. 1.-The report that a rith 1,700 men shoard, had foundered sent a thrill of horror through the country. today. Just at this time the public is ill prepared to receive the news of more disasters. It is impossible to verify the report, and the War Office has no information concerning the exact whereabouts of the other places vossel. Soon after the report was received here thousands of people flocked to the War Office. The absence of a bulletin aumounting the details of the disaster was a relief to many, but others argued that the news was purposely being withheld until the country partially recovered from the appailing result of the reconnelleane at Ladysmith. It was pointed out that the country is surfeited with had news, and that the facts of a fresh culumity, such as Incainking of a transport loaded with colers, would not only cause grief in Enghand but would arouse indignation every where The peculiar sensitiveness of the subtle mind would inevitably fend to the triticism, not to say the harmsday of the thereenment. ALDERSHOT STORY DENIED.

Three Battalions and a Battery Going to South Africa.

LONDON, Nov. 1.- The mobilization of troops at Aldershot, which was at first intended to show to the powers Great Britain's expubility of concentrating her military forces, has again revived the story that 19,999 additional troops were to be sept to South Africa. This rumor is emphatically denied by the War Office. They say that the only extra freeps ordered to the front are the three buttallons and one mountain battery, which had received orders to hold themselves in readings; some time ago. These forces, the War Office claim, will be sent to fill the gaps raused by the casualties which belon the British forces at Gienene, Elandstaugte, Rietfon tein, and Ladysmith.

Neither side will be in a position to attribute the defeat of its candidate to want of preparation. There are known to have been defections from the fusion ranks, because of the feeling that the Administration should not be opposed in its course in the Philippines, but the fusion forces have won some support by their position.
